CFP: 2018 SAGP Annual Meeting

October 19-21, 2018
Christopher Newport University, Newport News, VA

Keynote Speaker: Nickolas Pappas

Panel Proposal Deadline: May 1
Paper Abstract Deadline: June 1
Submit abstracts and proposals to apreus@binghamton.edu.

All participants must be members of the SAGP. To become a member, fill out the form linked to here and mail it to A. Preus, SAGP Philosophy, Binghamton University, 13902-6000.

Paper Abstracts

We invite people to submit abstracts on any topic in ancient Greek philosophy, broadly construed. For example:

1. Papers about philosophical texts originally written in Greek or Latin before 618 CE.
2. Papers about the influence of ancient Greek philosophy on other philosophical traditions, such as Islamic, Jewish, Christian, and other traditions
3. Papers on medieval or modern Platonism, Aristotelianism, Stoicism
4. Papers comparing classical Greek philosophical ideas with those in distinct philosophical traditions (e.g. Eastern Asian traditions) or contemporary philosophical views

To submit an abstract, please email it to apreus@binghamton.edu by June 1. There will be no commentators, and the SAGP does not require that papers be finalized before the conference.

Panels

Members are encouraged to organize panels, as in the past. All panel members must have paid in full before the panel can be included in the schedule.

To propose a panel, please email a proposal to apreus@binghamton.edu by May 1.

Conference

The relatively small conference registration fee will be in addition to $10 SAGP membership dues. The conference fee includes coffee throughout the conference and snacks/dessert and an open bar during the keynote on Saturday night. The reception will also feature a custom drink, “The Thrasymachus,” due to the fact that it is a wild beast of a drink. It is just that you try it; that is, it is to our advantage that you do so.

The conference schedule and decisions about papers and panels will be made by July 1.
